Dear Cousins,

My big news since last time is the birth of my first granddaughter, Sonja Dagny Davidsson (the last name being different from the parents' - a Swedish convention). Angela and David were taken a bit by surprise when Sonja decided to arrive a full month early - at 3:40PM on March 5, weighing in at a tiny 5 lbs. 8 oz. Both mom and babe made it through fine. She's keeping parents awake a lot and eating lots to catch up.

I'm still busy at work doing lots of earthquake- and inspection-related training, etc. I've been invited to share my earthquake program for

San Francisco with a number of quake-prone cities and states and may even have an opportunity to do so in Sicily in Nov.

Sons Damon and Bryan and grandson Devin went with me for the (hopefully) annual trip to Hawaii at the end of March. We had a great time sunning, snorkeling, sightseeing, rainforest hiking, and - a new activity: parasailing, a wonderful feeling, flying high above the water with an incredible view of the sea and the Honolulu skyline.

Pam and Mike are kept on their toes, working at their jobs in construction and trying to keep up with the 3 boys still living at home.

Damon keeps busy with his many enterprises. Maryann has passed her realtor exam and is working for a firm she really likes. Their son Devin just turned 12 and is enjoying school and outside activities. Bryan continues to work part-time with Damon and his own handyman business, spending most of his free time on his music.

Mother/June continues with her church, charitable, and social. She joins us for the holidays each year and will get a chance to meet great-granddaughter Sonja next time.

The Klingstedts stay active, with Wayne continuing to alternate between construction engineering and home/garden beautification, and Rob working part-time and improving her golf game. Jason works as web developer at a global publishing corporation. Jennifer works as a chiropractic assistant, personal trainer, and bartender and has just begun an intensive 3-year commitment to earn her chiropractic license.

Wishing all of you good health and happiness!
